DENTAL SURGERY.

MR. J. EMANUEL, Surgeon-Dentist, begs to offer the warmest expression of his gratitude to the gentry and public of New South Wales, for the unprecedented patronage extended to him since his arrival in the colony. Many of its leading families have done him the honour to bear ample testimony to his skill, the result of many years study under the first professors of the College of Leyden, Netherlands, from whom he obtained his diploma in 1836, AS A DENTIST. He has since then rendered himself intimately conversant with the various modern improvements in the surgical and mechanical parts of his profession, in London, in Paris, and other towns of the continent. This allusion to qualifications peculiar to himself, is dictated as much by philanthropy as self-interest, Mr. Emanuel having actually derived more pecuniary advantage from the treatment of complaints resulting from unskilful and baneful attempts of unqualified practitioners, than from any natural cause.

Mr. E. may be consulted, with perfect confidence, at his residence, every day, from ten until five, where diseases arising from or incidental to the teeth and gums will be promptly and permanently remedied. His artificial teeth, from one to a complete set, are admirably adapted to the purposes of mastication, articulation, and even for the embellishment of the mouth.

In conclusion, Mr. E. begs to caution his patients against the false reports circulated by interested parties, that the gold used by him in stopping decayed and securing artificial teeth will materially increase his charges.

£30,000 worth of Summer Drapery Goods;

Consisting of Silks, Satins, Satinetts, Chine, Gros de Naples, De Laines, Muslins, Prints, Long Cloths, Shawls, Bonnets, &c., &c.

JONATHAN THORP and CO. hasten to inform the Inhabitants of New South Wales, that, in consequence of some extensive alterations they are about making in their premises they have determined on clearing out the whole of their magnificent and unrivalled stock of British and Foreign manufactures before the first of December, at such prices as cannot fail to give satisfaction to the most fastidious who may honour them with a visit.

The fact of Jonathan Thorp and Co. selling cheaper than any house in the trade, is sufficiently known throughout this and the neighbouring colonies to render unnecessary any observation in proof of it, in the general course of business; but on the present occasion, having purchased from the Agent of the Assignee of a London Bankrupt upwards of £3,000 worth of French and Spitalfields Silks for little more than half the original cost, they feel that they would not be doing justice to their numerous constituents were they not to attempt to draw their attention to this unparalleled importation from the metropolis; they will therefore not trespass further on the public, as to enumerate either articles or price would, they deem, be quite superfluous,—all they solicit is an early call. 6427

AUSTRALIANISM.

The love of country is a passion inherent in the breast of man, whether civilised or savage, whether born in the luxurious regions of the tropics, or amid the frosts and snows of the most inhospitable of arctic climes. The place, the society, the institutions, the customs, which first occupied our infant thoughts, and interested our budding affections, and formed our habits and our tastes, however distant the land in which our after years may be passed, or however lengthened the period of our expatriation, can never be erased from the tablet of the heart. For the existence of this passion we are not accountable: it is part of our nature, as closely interwoven into the human system as hope and fear, joy and sorrow, hunger and thirst; but for its government we are not less responsible than for that of any other of our passions. It is good or evil in proportion as we encourage it to be generous or permit it to be contracted. If subordinated to that universal love of the species which forms the cardinal virtue of Christian ethics, the love of country is an ennobling virtue: for it carries man beyond himself, and teaches him to sympathise with the great family of the earth. But if in loving our country we shut out from our affections all other portions of the world's household, the passion becomes nothing but a modification of inordinate selfishness: we love our country merely because it coincides with our own tastes and predilections, and ministers to our individual enjoyments; whilst other countries, because the selfish principle derives from them no perceptible advantage, are regarded with indifference or dislike.

But the passion may be narrowed down to a rigorous selfishness by contracting the view of what is meant by country. A British subject professing to love his country may comprehend within the circle to which he attaches the name, on the one hand, millions of square miles, and millions of his fellow-creatures, or, on the other, the boundaries of some little locality, and a population of a few hundreds of souls. By his country he may mean the whole length and breadth of his sovereign's dominions; or that part of her dominions comprised within the three kingdoms; or that one of the three kingdoms in which he happened to have been born; or his native county; or his native village. In glorying in his country, he may mean that he glories in England as distinguished from Scotland and Ireland; or that he glories in Yorkshire as distinguished from all other counties; or that he glories in the West Riding as distinguished from the North and East; or that he glories in having been born and bred in Ripon rather than in Sheffield.

It is obvious, therefore, that when we speak of love of country, we may be designating a very comprehensive or a very contracted affection. An Englishman who loves the English, to the exclusion of the Irish and the Scotch—or an Irishman or a Scotchman who loves his own section of the empire with the like exclusiveness—is a narrow-minded, selfish man, to whom the virtue of true patriotism is an utter stranger. On the other hand, the Englishman, the Scotchman, or the Irishman, who, while naturally attached to his native section, glories pre-eminently in his rights, privileges, and advantages, as a British subject, and extends the warm hand of national brotherhood to all who owe allegiance to the British throne, is a lover of his country,—a patriot,—in the largest, noblest sense of the term. In his eyes national bigotry is hateful, whether developed in the shape of Englishism, Scottishism, or Irishism.

There is some danger of a species of national bigotry springing up in the Australias; and we can assign to it no more descriptive name than the one placed at the head of this article—Australianism. That our native youth should love the land of their birth above all other lands, is perfectly natural; that they should love it with a stricter exclusiveness because they have no opportunity of comparing it with other lands, is also natural; but that they should bind up their national sympathies within the limits of their own soil, and permit their national predilections to be poisoned by feelings of envy, jealousy, or mistrust towards all other classes of their fellow-subjects, is not only perfectly unnatural, but most unjust, absurd, and monstrous. Australianism of this sort would be even worse than any nationality which can divide English, Scotch, and Irish; for the Australians are even more closely allied by the ties of blood to native Britons, than the three kingdoms are to each other. The Australians are the sons, the brothers, the husbands, the wives, of Britons born; and, moreover, the British parents, brothers, wives, and husbands, are themselves Australians—though not by birth, by adoption. We are therefore all united by civil ties, as well as by those of consanguinity. We have not only one ancestry, one language, one complexion, one Sovereign—but one country, one home. In Australia, whether by birth or by choice matters not, the lot of all of us is cast. In her prosperity we have an equal interest. We all subsist upon the fruits of her soil—we are all concerned in the freedom of her institutions, in the equity of her laws, in the wisdom and justice of her government.

The offensive Australianism alluded to, first showed itself about six years ago. An attempt was then made to get up a dinner in commemoration of the establishment of the colony, from which all persons not Australian by birth were to be rigorously excluded. This, to say the least, unamiable combination was at the time strongly denounced by the press, and by all right-minded colonists; and we have much pleasure in acknowledging, that by the part he took on that occasion, Mr. W. C. Wentworth won general admiration. Himself a native—and confessedly one of the most talented of his countrymen—he was invited not only to attend the proposed banquet, but to occupy its chair. The letter in which he conveyed his reply was published in the newspapers of the day; and though we cannot lay our hands upon a copy, we well remember that it was to the effect, that having all his life been opposed to exclusive principles, he could on no account compromise his consistency by taking part in the exclusive celebration to which he had been invited. This was noble and manly, and we commended the example thus set by this son of Australia, to the imitation of all his countrymen.

The bigotry of Australianism then received a blow from which we had hoped it never would recover; but after remaining stunned nearly six years, it has recently revived, and again held up its odious head. It has intruded into our City Council, and endeavoured to control the administration of municipal patronage by its own narrow and exclusive rules. To bestow office upon a candidate because he is an Australian, and to deny it to another because he is not an Australian, is a rule of action which cannot be too strongly reprobated. In the eye of reason, the distinction is without a difference. We are all British subjects,—and, for national qualification, that is enough. The only point to which the dispensers of City patronage can be justified, either by law or common sense, in directing their attention, is that of personal qualification for the discharge of duty. If the candidate be competent to the faithful and efficient performance of his work, and possess a good moral character, to reject him on the ground of his not being a native of the colony, would be at once an absurdity, an injustice, a civic crime—Australianism of the deepest die and the foulest odour.

Wherever, whensoever, or by whomsoever this novel species of nationality may be exhibited, we trust it will be scouted by all true Britons, whether born in England, Ireland, Scotland, or Australia.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

SUPREME COURT.

Before His Honor Sir James Dowling, C.J.; His Honor Mr. Justice Burton; and His Honor Mr. Justice Stephen.

LYONS v. WALKER.

This was an action of detinue for the brig Avon and the certificate of her registry. Pleas, 1st. Denying the possession; and 2nd, denying the property in plaintiff, and issue thereon. At the trial before Mr. Justice Stephen during the last term, it appeared that the plaintiff and the defendant were respectively mortgagees of the brig Avon, of which Robert Duke and Co. were the registered owners and mortgagors, and the question in controversy was, whether either, and which of the mortgagees had perfected his title, under the ship's registry Act 3 and 4 Wm. IV., c. 55; by the 34th section of which (as far as respects this class of cases) it is enacted "That no bill of sale or other instrument in writing shall be valid and effectual to pass the property in any ship or vessel, or in any share thereof, or for any other purpose, until such bill of sale or other instrument in writing shall have been produced to the collector and controller of the port at which such ship or vessel is already registered, &c., nor until such collector and controller respectively shall have entered in the book of registry (and which they are respectively hereby required to do upon the production of the bill of sale or other instrument for that purpose) the name, residence, and description, of the vendor or mortgagor, or of each vendor or mortgagor, (if more than one) the number of shares transferred, the name, residence, and description of the purchaser, or mortgagee, or of each purchaser or mortgagee, if more than one, and the date of the bill of sale, or other instrument, and of the production of it; and further, the collector and controller of the port where such ship is registered shall, and they are hereby required to, endorse the aforesaid particulars of such bill of sale, or other instrument, on the certificate of registry of the said ship or vessel, when the same shall be produced to them for that purpose, in manner and to the effect following. Then follows the form, with directions in brackets, as to the particulars to be inserted, with the signatures, "A. B., collector; C. D., controller." The registered owners of the Avon, as appeared by the book, under date 19th April, 1839, were Robert Duke and Company. On the 5th September, 1840, whilst the vessel was at sea, Duke and Company, mortgaged sixty-four shares to the plaintiff, and on the 16th November, 1841, the plaintiff produced the mortgage to a clerk at the Custom House, then acting for the collector, who thereupon made the following entry, under the registry of the Avon, in the registry book:—

"Custom House, Sydney, 16th Nov., 1841.

"Robert Duke and John James Curtis, aforesaid, merchants, trading under the firm of Robert Duke and Company, have transferred, by conditional bills of sale, by way of mortgage, dated 5th September, 1840, sixty-four shares, to Samuel Lyons, of Sydney, auctioneer.

"T. B. Howard,
"Pro Collector."

Mr. Howard stated, that he was clerk to the Collector of Customs, at the Port of Sydney, there being no controller, and he kept the book of registry at the Custom House, and it was his duty to make the entry in question, and had authority to do so from the collector, and he did make the entry when applied to for that purpose by the plaintiff, who produced to him the mortgage. He held a treasury warrant appointing him clerk for general business, under the Collector of Customs at Sydney, and he had authority verbally to transact business for the Collector during his absence. He knew the registered owners, Robert Duke and Company, to be Robert Duke and John James Curtis.

Colonel Gibbes, the Collector of Customs, stated, that Howard had authority from him to make such entries as the one in question when he was absent from the Custom House. This was agreeably to the practice at all ports in England. In this colony, he represented the Commissioners of Customs in England. On the 16th November, 1841, when the entry in question was made, he believed he was not in Sydney.

At the close of the plaintiff's case, the defendant's counsel moved for a nonsuit on four grounds. First, that as the two pleas pleaded put in issue the possession of, and the property in, the vessel, the 22nd section of [the Registry Act put the plaintiff out of Court, for by that section it is declared, that a mortgagee, claiming only as such, shall not, by reason of such claim, be deemed to be the owner, except so far as might be necessary for the purpose of rendering the vessel, or the shares transferred, available for payment of the debt secured thereby. Secondly, that the plaintiff had not shown, under the 36th section, that he had been the first to procure the endorsement required by the Act to be made upon the certificate of registry. Third, that the provisions of the 34th section had not been complied with, inasmuch as that section required that the mortgage should be produced to the collector personally, and by him personally entered in the registry book of ownership; and fourth, that the entry of the mortgage in the registry book of ownership was defective in not setting forth the residences of the mortgagors.

The learned Judge declined to nonsuit on any of these points in the first instance, and suffered the defendant to go into his case; but at the close of it he was of opinion, that the third objection was too cogent for resistance, and accordingly he held, that the plaintiff had not complied with the 34th section of the Act, which required the mortgage to be produced to the Collector of Customs, and by him entered in the Registry Book, and by him signed; and that it was not sufficient to produce it to a Custom House clerk for these purposes. His Honor thought that the Legislature, by the express language used, evidently intended to interpose a public officer of known responsibility, on whom should be devolved the duty of superintending and authenticating transfers of this description; and he could see no authority for delegating that duty to a mere clerk. On this ground he directed the plaintiff to be nonsuited.

A motion having been made last term, to set aside the nonsuit and grant a new trial, the question, after argument, was reserved for judgment.

Sir James Dowling, Chief Justice:—After full consideration, we are of opinion that the nonsuit must be set aside, and a new trial granted. It is true that the words of the 34th section of the Ship's Registry Act, are very stringent in terms, in requiring the instrument to be produced to the Collector, and that the transfer shall not be valid until the Collector shall have entered in the registry book the names, &c., of the mortgagor and mortgagee, respectively; but the question is, whether we are to construe the mere words of the act so strictly as to work a forfeiture of the plaintiff's right to this vessel, for such would be the effect of such a construction, and that without any default of his. The obvious policy of the act, is to give publicity and solemnity to the transfer, and this—provided the instrument is produced at the Custom House, and the particulars are entered in the Registry Book by a clerk, publicly acting for the Collector of Customs—is as much effected as if it were produced to, and entered by, the Collector himself. The plaintiff does all that in him lies, to comply with the law, in producing the instrument at the Custom House, to the functionary there in attendance, and representing the head of the Customs' department. The officer in attendance takes upon himself to do the act required by law. How is the mortgagee to know that the person in attendance has no right to see the instrument, and no right to enter the particulars of it in the registry book? If the Custom-house Clerk had no such authority, it lay upon him to inform the plaintiff that it could not be done without the intervention of the Collector, and warn him of the necessity of postponing his registration until the Collector should be in attendance in his place; then he might have waited until the act could be done in technical form of law. But after the act was done by a person apparently acting in a public office as competent to perform the functions of the Collector, a strong case of necessity must be made out to work a forfeiture against an innocent party, who does all that he can be required to do to secure his title. The public policy of the Act has not been evaded, and the question is, whether the failure to perform the ministerial duty of looking at the instrument, and entering it in the registry book by the particular eye and particular hand of a particular officer, by name, is to defeat the right of the present plaintiff? There was here a production—an exhibition of the instrument at the public Custom House, to a party standing in a public office, in the place and stead of the Collector. If any judgment or discretion were to be exercised in looking at the instrument on its production, and afterwards in registering it, a strict construction of the Act might be required. But the thing to be done, as far as the Collector was concerned, was merely ministerial, and required no exercise of judgment or discretion. In contemplation of law, any man appointed or authorised by the Collector to act for him during the temporary absence from office, to perform a ministerial duty, must, as respects the public, be regarded as the Collector himself.

Although this may be a very loose mode of discharging the duties of Collector, and is not free from reprehension, as a departure from the strict letter of the Act; yet as regards the public, it would work the grossest injustice to private rights, if the negligence of a public officer, in not attending to perform his proper functions, were to unsettle title to property. The Collector swore that the clerk had authority from him to make such entries when he was absent from office, and that this was the practice of collectors in all ports of England. He may have been misled by such a practice if it really exists, but the doctrine cannot be recognized of allowing any practice or usage, however convenient in ease of the head of a department, to dispense with the proviso of an Act of Parliament. The principle upon which we are inclined to uphold the plaintiff's right of action is, that the policy and the provisions of the law have been substantially complied with by him, and that for any literal default in a public functionary, he is not to be damnified. Here the production of the mortgage was at the Custom House, to an officer acting for the Collector, and entered by that officer, who, signs "for the Collector," with the Collector's previous authority, and adopted it as an act done in the course of business, in the office of Collector of Customs. Under these circumstances, although a departure from the literal duty pointed out by the Act cannot be too emphatically discouraged, we think the statute has been substantially complied with, and, at all events, ought not to be strained to work the forfeiture of a title, without any default in the plaintiff.

No reported case is, perhaps, to be found, in which this construction has been put upon the modern Registry Act; but construing it in pari materia with the old acts, the decision of the Courts at Westminster seem to warrant the interpretation which we feel ourselves justified in applying to the present act. In Heath v. Hubbard, 4. East 127, it was held, "that the 16th section of the 34 Geo. III. c. 68, which relates to the alteration of property in ships when absent from their ports, construed by reference to the terms of the 15th, the immediately preceding section, and to which it immediately relates, can only be construed as directory, so far as it respects the entry and memorandum to be made, and the notice to be given to the Commissioners of Customs by the persons authorised to make registry; the vacating provisions being confined to the commission of such acts only, as are required to be done by the immediate parties to the sale or transfer in not extending (as it would be most unreasonable that they should extend) to the acts or omissions of third parties or strangers." The like construction was put upon the same act in Bloxam v. Hubbard, 5, East. 407, and in Hubbard v. Johnstone (in error) 3 Taunt. 177, it was held by Wood B, and Heath J, that the Ships Register Acts, so far as they apply to defeat titles, and create forfeitures, are to be construed strictly as penal, and not literally as remedial laws. The omission of the Collector to perform any duty required by the act to be by him performed, might render him liable to penalties, but his omission of a duty which appears to be only directory, ought not to prejudice the right of the party, who has, in other respects, complied with the requisites of the statute.

The nonsuit must, in the opinion of the Court, be set aside, and a new trial granted.

The judgment, which has thus been delivered, is of course the judgment of the Court. It is proper to state, however, that one of our number, Mr. Justice Stephen, does not concur in it.

The Court then intimated, that in order to save expense to the parties, certified copies of the evidence already taken, would be received as evidence, without the examinations being gone over again.

Rules Nisi.

THE QUEEN v. PLUNKETT.

Application was made in this case to make absolute a rule nisi, which had been obtained, calling upon Patrick Plunkett, Esq., P. M., to show cause why a mandamus should not issue against him to compel him to issue a warrant of distress under the provisions of the Parish Road Act, against parties who refused to pay rates assessed by the trustees for the road between Wollongong and Berrima.

Mr. Windeyer appeared to support the rule; but an arrangement was entered into, at the suggestion of the Solicitor-General, by which the matter was allowed to lie over until next term; it being a condition, that if the Solicitor-General, on further consideration of the case, did not find that there were grounds for Captain Plunkett's refusing to do what he was required, he should advise him to accede, and thus prevent the necessity of coming before the Court again.

HEBBLEWHITE v. GIBBONS.

In this case an application had been made on a previous day, calling upon John Ross, Esq., merchant, to show cause why an attachment should not issue against him for contempt of Court, for not having attended to a summons to attend before an Examiner of the Court, at a quarter past three o'clock, on the afternoon of the 16th September, to give evidence de bene esse, in the above case.

Mr. Windeyer appeared to support the rule; and Mr. Foster, to oppose its being made absolute.

From an affidavit filed by Mr. Ross, it appeared that, although not in attendance at a quarter past three, he was in attendance at half past three, and that then the party who was to examine him had left the office; that he had attended at great personal inconvenience to himself, having business calling him out of town, and being about to leave for Van Diemen's Land the next day; and, moreover, having applied to the attorneys, Messrs. Rielly and Bradley, to fix some other hour for his examination, which was refused.

After some time had been occupied, the Court discharged the rule.

IN RE NEWTON v. MICHEL. EXPARTE CAROLINE MARY MICHEL.

This was an application to the Court to set aside the registry of a title to land purchased by one Edward Carpenter Hicks, at a Sheriff's sale, which had been sold under an execution in the above cause.

The application was founded on affidavit of Henry Edward Michel, of Sydney, gentleman, acting as agent for Caroline Mary Michel, of Dawlish, in the county of Dorset, England, spinster; from which it appeared that a writ of fi fa was issued in the cause above named on the 8th March last, returnable on the 9th April following, the sum of £204 7s. 11d.; the Sheriff advertised for sale the right and title of the deponent to some property, land, and possessions at Mundarlo, in this colony, and on the 6th day of June caused them to be sold; the deponent had on the 12th of March surrendered his property for the general benefit of his creditors, and notice of such surrender was duly lodged with the Sheriff; moreover, deponent swore that he had before this disposed of all his right, title, and interest in and to this property to his sister, on behalf of whom the present application was made, for a valuable consideration, and that at the time of the sale he gave notice of this fact to the Sheriff, and to the purchaser, as well as of the fact of his insolvency; notwithstanding which notice the Sheriff proceeded to sell, and the purchaser bought a valuable property for £25, and afterwards registered his title given by the Sheriff in the Supreme Court.

This case it appeared had previously been heard before His Honor Mr. Justice Burton, in Chambers. At that time there was nothing to show that Mr. Michel really was the agent of his sister; but since he had received a power of attorney, which was now produced. Mr. Justice Burton had at the time suggested that the matter should be brought before the Court by way of motion for attachment against the parties concerned; but up to the present time nothing had been done.

It was stated by Mr. Darval, who made the application, that notice had been given to the Sheriff, to the trustee of the insolvent, and to the purchaser.

Mr. Windeyer opposed the application; but stated that he did not appear for the sheriff; neither did the trustees appear.

The case occupied a very considerable time; the Judges expressed their dissatisfaction that neither the Sheriff nor the trustees to Mr. Michel's estate had come before the Court. It was evident that a gross contempt of the process of the Court, and a violation of the Insolvent Law, had been committed, and they had no hesitation in setting aside the sale, and all subsequent proceedings, and directed that all the papers connected with the case should be placed in the hands of the Attorney General, in order that he might consider whether it would be his duty to bring the Sheriff, or any other of the parties, before the Court for contempt.

The Judges then heard a variety of motions, until near five o'clock, when the Court adjourned.

The causes still remaining on the new trial paper, are to stand over till next term. The Court will deliver judgment in the three cases now pending on the first Wednesday in December; and on the first Wednesday in January, 1843, will sit to hear appeals in Equity.

Supreme Court Business.—The following three cases are for Judgment: Irving v. Dumaresq, Hill v. Thompson, Simmons v. Abrahams. EXAMINATIONS.

In the insolvency of Robert Dawson:

At an adjourned meeting held on the 27th of October last. The insolvent was called, and being examined by Mr. Michie, deposed as follows:—My schedule was drawn by myself. In 1834, I sent my son out here with a power of attorney. The debt to Ricardo arose from a bill of exchange I drew upon Mr. Caldercott for £1062 10s., which being accepted by him, was cashed by Mr. Ricardo; it was an accommodation acceptance, and I gave my promissory note. My father died intestate. The bond executed by me in favour of Kiddell is for £500, a sum of money lent to me by my late father, and the debt was assigned by him to my sister's husband, during my father's lifetime. There was no particular meeting about that £500. Mr. Kiddell and all the family knew very well that he was to have the £500. I have paid interest for it; it was not left in my hands for Mr. Kiddell for the purpose of my using it for our joint interest, or investing it in any way; it was understood in different conversations, that the £500 I owed to my father Mr. Kiddell was to have; but we had no general meeting about it. Poole and Gamlin acted as the attorneys for all our family, and I executed the bond for £500 in favour of Kiddell, and at his request in their office. I had an elder brother, who died about a year after my father. When I went to Mr. Ricardo I showed Ricardo my son's letter, saying that he had reserved £1000 for me. My son did claim the horse station. The reason why I think Ricardo has not recovered from Caldercott is, from his telling me that he looked to me for payment. In a letter written in 1841, I executed a bond to pay to my sister Anna Maria £500, which I owed to my father. I never retained Messrs. Minithorpe and Gurner in any way.

The examination was then adjourned.

On Saturday, November 12, the insolvent was called and deposed, on examination by the Chief Commissioner as follows:—I executed a deed of mortgage to secure the money I owed to Ricardo. The deed bears date July 12, 1841, it contains a power of sale; but it requires that the mortgagee should give forty-five days' notice to me before sale, which notice I never had, nor any notice.

Cross-examined by Mr. Cory: The £1000 I received from Miss Dawson, and the £1060 from Ricardo was expended in stock and other things in England, which stock I brought out here, and it has since been sold; I sold 2 bulls to Mr. Ryder for £237 10s.; 1 to Roberts for £285; Captain Scott 1 ram for £15; 680 sheep to Hugh Gordon for £850; 5 rams to Mr. George Townshend for £30; 1 bull to Mr. Bell for £175, less the discount; 471 ewes to Mr. Gordon for £600; 2 rams to A. M'Leod for £10; 20 rams and 50 wethers to the same for £75; a chestnut colt to Mr. Gordon for £42; a black mare to Hewson for £40; 10 rams to Mr. Steele for £52 10s.; a bull to the Auction Company for £123, less the discount; Mr. Pringle a service of horses for £300; ditto £50; 518 wethers to William Sparke for £245 10s. 6d. less the discount; 2 rams to Mr. Day for £10; the Loan Company cash £520; ditto scrip £456; a mare to Mr. C. Smith for £250; a horse to Monies for £505; 1 horse to Lesslie £200; 1 mare to Windham £150; service of horses to Gunnie £175; Mr. Carter for rent of station £200; 70 rams £70 cash; to Mr. Carter £30; ditto £4; Mr. Ebsworth for wool at various times £450; Mr. Lyons's wool bill £160; cattle sold to various persons £150; wool sold in 1839, £500; chestnut mare £30; a bill endorsed for and lent to me £150, being an accommodation bill; Mr. Jamison for service of a horse £50. Total, £6,938. My banker's book shows an expenditure of £3,969 11s. 3d., that is from 1839 to 1841; book accounts £1,866 6s. 6d.; I paid my son by Roberts's bill for a bull £300, also Ryder's bill for £250; he received sale of mare paid to my son £200; mare sold to Windham £150; my son received also bull sold to Bell £120, he received three rams from Wentworth £45, and one from Captain Scott £15. The difference of Lyons's bill paid by me over to Mitchell £304 8s. 4d. Total, £7,205 6s. 1d. This closed the examination.

New Insolvents.—On Saturday last, a compulsory sequestration was ordered to be gazetted for the estate of Richard Sanderson, late of Sydney, printer and publisher; Joseph White, late of Pitt-street, Sydney, grocer, also filed his schedule on the same day.

WOOL TRADE.

To Messrs ———.

Sirs,—In reply to your enquiries respecting the actual and probable state of the Colonial wool market, we beg, in the first instance to refer you to our enclosed circular and price current, as regards prices: for the next few months, we do not think, in the present state of trade generally, that much improvement can be anticipated; unless we should receive very decided good news from India or China. On the other hand, as the stocks in the hands of consumers and dealers are small, there is reason to hope that little or no reduction will be experienced from the prices of the last public sales; of this we shall know more when those of July shall take place, and which are likely to be materially assisted by the promising appearances we have of a good harvest.

We think it right to add, that Colonial wools are every season gaining in estimation with the consumers, so much so, as to be rapidly superseding the wools of Spain and Germany. The grower may therefore be assured of having the very utmost price for his flock that the actual state of trade will enable the consumers to give, and as the present price current cannot be considered high, the prospect for succeeding seasons is really encouraging.

We remain, Sirs,
Very respectfully,
Your obedient servants,
J. T. SIMS AND CO.

London, June 29, 1842.

Water Police Office.—The following is an abstract of the number of cases which have come before this bench, for the last two years: From the 31st October, 1840, to the 31st October, 1841, three thousand four hundred and fourteen cases were tried; and from the 31st October, 1841, to the 31st October, 1842, two thousand five hundred and thirty-five cases; making a total of five thousand nine hundred and forty-nine. It will thus appear, that the business for the last year has decreased considerably, there having been eight hundred and seventy-nine more cases in the first than in the second year.

Stealing.—Ellen Crane, a frail specimen of the sex usually denominated fair, was brought before the Police Court on Saturday, charged with stealing three shirts, a coat, a waistcoat, and a couple of silk handkerchiefs, the property of Richard Holden, by whose evidence it appeared, that the articles in question had been taken by the prisoner from off the wharf where he was at work. On being apprehended upon the charge, the defendant at once admitted that she had taken the things, and stated that she had pledged them with a Mrs. Joyce, residing in Clarence-street. Accordingly she was accompanied to this place; but the woman Joyce denied the fact, although she acted in so equivocal a manner as to leave no doubt on the mind of the prosecutor that the woman's story was a true one. Under these circumstances, the prisoner was remanded till to-day, in order to afford time for further inquiry.

ADMINISTRATION OF THE OATHS OF OFFICE TO HIS WORSHIP THE MAYOR.

On Saturday morning their Honors the three Judges took their seats shortly after ten o'clock, in their purple robes. Nearly the whole of the officers of the Court, most of the members of the bar, as well as attornies and their clerks, were present in Court, together with a large number of private individuals, to witness the ceremony of administrating the Oaths of Office to the Worshipful the Mayor, John Hosking, Esq., on his acceptance of the office to which he was elected by his fellow-citizens. The Mayor entered the Court shortly after the Judges, attended by the Aldermen, and was introduced to their Honors by Mr. Alderman Allen, as returning officer. The Chief Clerk, Alfred Elyard, Esq., immediately administered the oaths required to be taken by magistrates. The oaths having been taken, and the Mayor having subscribed the declaration against transubstantiation, Chief Justice Sir James Dowling addressed the Mayor as follows.—

"Mr. Mayor,—The importance of the event which has given to the inhabitants of Sydney the management of their municipal affairs, may not, even in this place, be unseasonably the subject of a few observations.

"Indicating as it does the acknowledgment of the fitness of the community for the exercise of the political rights of British subjects, and the growing wealth and importance of this, the chief city of the great Southern Hemisphere, the Judges of this Court, gladly avail themselves of the opportunity to tender to the citizens through you, Mr. Mayor, their now first Chief Magistrate, their congratulations.

"Upon you Sir, has been conferred a most important office. Your fellow-citizens in electing you to the seat of the Chief Magistrate of the city, have doubtless done so, with entire confidence in your loyalty, integrity, and ability, and from a conviction, that on your part, the sacred trust committed to your hands, of watching over the rights and interests of the Corporation,—the maintenance of the law for the preservation of the peace and welfare of the city—the marked discountenance of vice and immorality—the stern opposition to corruption in every branch of the municipal functions—and the orderly, as well as economical dispensation of the corporate funds, will not have been misplaced.

"Much and justly as your office must be respected, it can only acquire permanent esteem in the eyes of your fellow-citizens by the confirmation on your part, of these expectations. Trials and difficulties you must be prepared to encounter, in the administration of an office so new in this hemisphere. These, however, may be overcome by dignity, temper, and impartiality; for in your position personal interests and feelings are not to be indulged, the welfare of the whole body politic being centred in the grave trust committed to your charge.

"Entering upon your office, under such peculiar circumstances, it cannot be doubted that you have a deep sense of the present responsibility attached to it, and of the consequences, for good or ill, which may flow from its administration in your hands. In you the citizens will look for an example of probity, high principle, and incorruptibility. Much of the moral and political destinies of this city, must be influenced by the demeanour of its Chief Magistrate; and in the selection now made, the aspirations of every good and virtuous citizen cannot but be deeply involved.

"The Worshipful the first Mayor of the first city of Australia, will now enter upon his duties with a just sense, we are assured, of the prominence of his position, and with a deep anxiety to acquire the respect of his fellow-citizens, and by his example (which may be auspiciously anticipated) render the office he holds, an object of honourable ambition to every right-minded man in the community."

The Judges ordered a separate Roll of oaths to be subscribed by the Mayors and Aldermen of the Corporation, when appointed respectively magistrates of the city.

The Mayor and Aldermen then proceeded to Government House and were introduced to the Governor.

Civic Feast.—We are requested to contradict our statement that the dinner at the Royal Hotel was given by the worshipful the Mayor. It was given by the whole body of the Council, and by them the expense was paid. We presume the Mayor's feast will be on a larger scale, and will be attended by a more numerous assembly.

The New Judge.—There was a report in town on Saturday that Mr. W. M. Manning had been appointed to succeed Mr. Justice Willis at Port Phillip. Mr. Solicitor General a'Beckett, it was said, had declined the appointment.

Bishop of Tasmania.—The Kentish Observer of the 1st July mentions the appointment of the Rev. F. R. Nixon to the see of Tasmania, with a salary of £1000 a year.

The Supreme Court.—His Honor the Chief Justice will sit to-day in Equity. The common jury trials will be proceeded with before one of the other judges.

Charge of Destroying Property.—William Bryant, a young man employed as assistant by Mr. Jessett, Chemist, of George-street North, was brought before the Police Court, on Saturday last, under a warrant issued against him at the instance of Mr. Lewis Cohen, Tailor, residing next door to Mr. Jessett's, by whom he, the defendant, was charged with maliciously destroying property to the value of £12. By the evidence of the prosecutor, it appeared, that although he had never quarrelled with the defendant, he had seriously disagreed with his employer, Mr. Jessett, on several occasions; and on Monday evening last, he was sitting at tea in his back parlour, when his attention was drawn to some person stumbling outside, so as to throw down a shutter which stood in the passage; and on going out, he discovered that a large quantity of oil of vitriol had been thrown across several beds and other articles of furniture, which also stood in the passage, and being at the time in the act of trickling down upon the floor, had evidently been just thrown down. On making further enquiries, he ascertained from his father-in-law, Mr. Solomon Hyams, that the defendant had gone out only a few minutes before, having come up from taking his tea in the kitchen, and passed through the passage with the view of going to the shop in which he was employed; suspecting, therefore, that the defendant was the person who had scattered the vitriol, the complainant at once accused him of it; but he denied all knowledge of the occurrence. After these circumstances had been deposed to by the witnesses for the complainant, Mr. Nichols, who appeared on the part of the defendant, contended, that the information was incorrectly framed, inasmuch, as it did not state the nature of the offence, and the place where it was alleged to have been committed, with sufficient explicitness to correspond with the terms of the Act; this, however, was overruled by the bench, and the presiding magistrate expressed some doubt as to whether he should proceed with the case summarily, or should send it for trial to a higher court, and in consequence of this doubt, the case was remanded till Tuesday next, the Court refusing to hear any evidence for the defence, until it should have been determined whether to proceed with the case summarily or not, on the ground that if it should be determined to send the case to another Court, it would be proper that the defence should be reserved for the trial. Mr. Nichols remarked, previous to the postponement of the case, that the magistrates were not empowered to proceed with the case in any other than a summary manner; and in that event he was prepared to produce evidence which would totally rebut the charge.

A Question of Partnership.—Two men named Charles Kinitz and Frederick Schultz, appeared before the Police Bench, on Saturday, charged with stealing a baker's trough, a couple of peels, a sieve, a colander, and a large basket, the property of a person named Berriger, by whose evidence it appeared, that the articles in question were abstracted from his premises by the defendants, while he was absent at Maitland. On the part of the defence, however, it was pleaded, that a partnership had existed between the complainant and the defendant Schultz, and as this assertion was in a great degree borne out by the cross-examination of the prosecutor, and the testimony adduced on the behalf of the defendant, the case was dismissed.

Extracts from a Letter from Sydney.—"A great sensation has been excited here, as it is asserted that the Tory ministry intend reviving transportation and assignment in the colony, and among all classes this is looked upon with dislike. Even those to whom assignment would seem to be the greatest benefit, viz., the country settlers, who would thus save a large sum annually in labour, do not appear to wish its revival. It is certainly felt very generally, and I think with justice, to be a hard case, when we are getting emigrants pretty freely, and, by their constant arrivals, bringing down the labour market, that we should again be inundated with swarms of villains. The colony is gradually getting the better of the very bad effects on its fame which the knowledge of its being a penal settlement naturally produced; and now that it is no longer considered such, people emigrate with more satisfaction. If no new lots of convicts were sent out, in about fifty years or so it would be peopled by only free colonists, and the name of "Lag" become one of tradition. If they will persist in reviving transportation here, at least let them send only enough convicts to be useful in Government works, roads, &c., which will afford them ample employment, and yet prevent their mixing with the free emigrants. Just as people at home are beginning to direct their attention, with some interest, to this place, and we are emerging from a state of the deepest commercial distress, out comes the report of this killing resolution, and throws a damp over all the activity of the colonists, and one than which none can act with more prejudice in the eyes of those who are likely to become emigrants. As long as assignment is permitted New South Wales must continue a grossly immoral country; and even the slight improvement witnessed of late, will, if this system be revived, be entirely lost. Moreover, it is a cruelty to shut out so many thousands from honest industry, by putting such a brand on the place, that they will rather suffer any extreme than encounter it. The want of rain is much felt here up the country; this is one of the most serious evils that can afflict the colony, as not only the crops are bad, but the loss in cattle and sheep is truly tremendous. The great drawback to our prosperity is the want of rivers. It has been long known that so far from becoming an agricultural country, we shall never grow near enough corn for our own consumption; and, therefore, when it comes to be only a country for wool-growing and herding stock (the former is our staple), you can easily imagine the dreadful havoc the want of rain must make among our flocks of sheep and immense herds of cattle. The only water they can depend upon finding in the interior is that of the "water-holes"—immense ponds—which, although filled to overflowing during the rainy season, are soon exhausted by the great call made upon them, and the evaporation during a few hot weeks. The failure of water is the great dread of the settler, and when it does occur it destroys thousands and thousands of both sheep and cattle. February, 1842."—Weekly Chronicle.

Sugar.—Extract from a letter dated Manila, July 12, 1842:—"As was expected, the late favourable advices from your quarter have led to considerable speculations amongst the Spanish merchants here, and there are now loading, on general freight for Sydney, the City of Aberdeen, 240 tons, and the Lawrence, 180 tons. Besides those vessels, there are in port the Royal George, the Persian, the Laura, and Louisa, chartered on your side. The other vessels are all waiting for sugar, of which, suited to your market, our market is now perfectly bare. We are the only holders of Zebu sugars in this place, and unless there are speedy arrivals of Iroylo and Tal sugar, we fear some of the above chartered vessels will fall on demurrage."—Launceston Advertiser.

Land.—The land sales by Mr. Stubbs, principally to be noticed this day, are the building allotments near the Toll-bar, on the Parramatta road. Besides which, are the Waterview Bay allotments, just arranged for definitive sale; and in the evening, the Gipps Town, without reserve, being about the termination of the disposable allotments in that quarter. The public will see the Herald of this day for minute reference.—Communicated.

The order for the withdrawal of the advertisement headed "Public Notice" and signed "J. K. Heydon" came too late to be attended to: this is the more to be regretted, as it is expected that the affair will be amicably arranged to day.

Police Court Business—Saturday.—The Police lists of Saturday contained in all, twenty cases, namely: one of stealing, remanded till to-day; two of stealing, which were dismissed; one of suspicion of stealing, discharged; one of stealing wearing apparel, remanded; one confinement for protection, in which the person confined was ordered to be sent to the Asylum; one breach of the Hired Servants' Act, remanded till to-day; one malicious injury to property, remanded till Tuesday (to-morrow); one resisting a constable, in which the defendant was fined five shillings; one disorderly conduct, dismissed; one drunkenness and common prostitution, which was also dismissed; and nine of drunkenness in the streets, in which three of the defendants were females, and the whole of them were new hands, brought up for their first or second offence. Besides the above business, there was one summons case in the list, for refusing to support a wife, which was dismissed, in consequence of there being no prosecution.

Court of Claims.—Notice of Hearings.—The Commissioners will investigate the following claims to lands and town allotments, on Wednesday, the 23rd November, and following days, at eleven o'clock:—1141. Edye Manning, of Sydney, merchant. 1142. George Hill, of Albion-street, Surry Hills. 1143. Solomon Phillips, of Parramatta, dealer; solicitor, C. B. Lyons. 1144. William Graham, of Shoalhaven. 1145. Michael Byrne, of Campbelltown, an infant; solicitor, John Ogle. 1146. Edward Kerswill, of Sydney, shipwright; solicitors, Minithorpe and Gurner. 1147. Benjamin Lee, of Paterson, settler. 1148. —— Cohen, of ——. 1149. William Peisley, of Parramatta, butcher; solicitor, C. B. Lyons. 1150. Gregory Howe and Thomas Patrick Fitzsimons, both of Parramatta; solicitor, A. Hayward. 1151. Charles Bones, of Sydney, brewer 1152. George Sutter, of Baulkham Hills, settler; solicitor, A. Hayward. The cases that were postponed at the last sitting will also be heard at this one.

Fashions for July.—With the warm weather, some new barèges have appeared termed barèges bayaderes; they are equally light and pretty, of very soft texture, sprigged with flowers or covered in Arabic patterns; next to glacée silks, they are the materials most in demand. In Paris, white seems to be quite confined this season to evening dress. Embroided muslins, India muslins organdys, laced pointed muslins, and jaconets, are no longer visible by daylight, silks and worsted materials in a thousand different styles, are the only articles in demand. Walking dresses are generally made high, to wear with the transparent mantelet or pelerine; the skirts are of prodigious width, and the length as inconvenient as during the winter; short sleeves are fashionable for the house; in long ones, those à la Diane de Poitiers and the Amadis are much worn. The pointed corsages are almost exclusively reserved for dress toilettes; the rounded point is worn en négligé, and the ceinture with long ends. Dinner dresses are of foulards, satins, princesses, pekins, poult de soie, &c. A novelty in trimmings is a new style of flounce made quite plain at the top, but falling in flutes at the edge; they form elegant trimmings without loading the dress; they are very pretty in striped pekins; very full and narrow ruches chicorées are much in favour for redingotes and peignoirs. Scarfs of embroidered muslin are trimmed with Valenciennes lace, headed by a bouillonè, through which a ribbon is passed, corresponding with the colour of the dress. Mantelets are made of glacée silk, trimmed with bouillons, with armholes, and forming very large round at the back. The round pelerines continue to be much worn. Camail's of shot silk are also trimmed with ruches of the same colour, and black ones with gimp. There is at present little to say about bonnets; fancy straws, and a new kind of paille de riz, which cleans well, are the principal novelties. Crape bonnets and tulle bouillonné are very elegant, and suitable for the mourant. Capotes à coulisses are always fashionable; they are frequently entirely covered with tulle, which gives them a very light appearance. Capotes composed of folds of crape, should always be of the colour of the dress. Couronnes Josephine or Ceres, bunches of lillies of the valley, are used for capotes of gauze; double poppies, daisies, camellia, aloes, wild roses, for Leghorns.—London and Paris Ladies' Magazine of Fashion.

NEWS FROM THE INTERIOR.

(From our various Correspondents.)

BATHURST.—LABOUR.

A public meeting of the members of the Association for obtaining permission to import Coolies, or other labourers from the East Indies, was held at Bathurst, this day (9th November), at Mrs. Black's Hotel. It was respectably attended, but many influential employers of labour, members of the Association were absent, in consequence of shearing operations.

Major-General STEWART, J. P., was called to the chair.

GEORGE RANKIN, Esq., J. P., moved the first resolution:—

That the Memorial to Lord Stanley, of the Association formed at Sydney for obtaining permission to import Coolies, or other labourers, from India, be adopted by this Meeting and Association, and that signatures to the same be procured as early as possible.

The resolution was seconded by D. M. IRVING, Esq., J. P., and carried.

WILLIAM HENRY SUTTOR, Esq., J. P., moved the second resolution.

That the Chairman be solicited to communicate with his Excellency the Governor, and request his assistance and co-operation with the objects of the Meeting and Association.

He said that he had hitherto been opposed to the importation of Coolies, and but for circumstances, and the condition of the settlers, which indicated the prospect of a pressing necessity, should be still adverse to it. They were, however, compelled to seek this resource, as a drowning man grasps at anything with the tenacity of self-preservation.

Mr. GILBERT WRIGHT, in seconding this resolution, said, that upon the controverted question of Coolie labour he could not but make a few observations. The formation of this Association served to show that the colonists had learnt one lesson, at least, from adversity: they had learnt the necessity of looking a little in advance, the advantage of prudent anticipation and wise foresight. The want of labour was not, indeed, then so urgently felt; but it was foreseen that, without a regular importation, proportioned to the increase of stock, a dearth would again be experienced. The most sanguine did not anticipate a fund from the sale of land wherewith to buy British immigrants: and, could they purchase them, the policy was doubtful, for already an enormous proportion of colonial capital had been exported in exchange for them—the very life blood of the colony had been drained—emaciation had ensued. It was true that the labour market had been cheapened, but had they not purchase t dear,

Short intermission, bought with double smart.

Thus circumstanced, to avoid the destruction of their stock, the sacrifice of their capital,—to retain, indeed, their position among the colonies of the empire, and to develop the resources of the Australian continent, it was sought to import more accessible and more cheaply attainable labour from India. A restriction (which as regarded the Mauritius had been relaxed) still, however, prohibited the emigration of Indians here; their present efforts were therefore directed to the removal of this prohibition; the details and subsequent arrangements were not for them, then, to consider, it was sufficient to acquiesce in the terms of Lord Stanley's despatch. But the question arose, is the importation of Indian Coolies or labourers defensible? and he confessed that he should attach great weight to the arguments of those who were opposed to it, if there were not a case of proved necessity—if it were not capable of proof, on the one hand, that it was alone by a continuous supply of labour the ruin of the colony could be averted, and on the other, that such supply could no longer be obtained from Europe. The question, therefore, resolved itself into this: were they to reject a good that was attainable and within their reach because there was another and superior and preferable good, unattainable and beyond their reach? There was no member of the Association but would give the warmest preference to the British emigrants: when, indeed, they heard the desperate destitution of their countrymen; when they heard that thousands and tens of thousands of industrious labourers were starving at home; and when they contrasted the destitution and want, thus prevalent, with their capacity to feed and clothe, and employ and relieve, it was impossible not to deplore the fatal and melancholy policy which precluded the arrival of British emigrants here; it was most assuredly a moral obligation, a sacred duty to the mother country to give this preference, and afford this relief to their suffering countrymen. Nor did they seek to deny these obligations or evade these duties; they only complained that they were not permitted to discharge and perform them. There was not one but would exclaim with the Poet—

Dear country, oh! how dearly dear
Ought thy remembrance and perpetual band
Be to thy foster child, that from thy hand
Did common breath, and nouriture rec ive;
How brutish is it not to understand
How much to her we owe, that all us gave
That gave us all, and whatever go d we have.

But, acknowledging their obligations, admitting their debt, and giving the most decided and completest preference to British emigrants, yet all must submit, and yield to circumstances, and to the requirements of a proved necessity. The objectors, however, protested against the introduction of colour, caste, and heathenism amongst us. And, he confessed, that he did not share their squeamish repugnance, and fastidious horror. And, it was singular, that these objectors were principally found among that class, who most piously believed those scriptures which assured us, all men were of "one blood" and "one flesh," and who most zealously promoted the evangelization of these very Indians. And if the heathenism, prevalent in India, was within the sphere of required Christian exertion, if it was one of the most worthy enterprises of enlarged Christian ambition, to make war on the superstitions of Hindoo paganism, surely, there was a monstrous inconsistency in this horror of contamination, in this fastidious repugnance which revolted at association. By bringing the Asiatic Indians here they might wean them from their degrading superstitions, and ritual fooleries; they might convert them from their polytheism and idolatry. But, no! say these pious and evangelic objectors—it is a good thing to send the gospel to the heathens; but it is a bad thing to let the heathens come to a gospel country. It is a good thing to send holy men and missionaries to convert them; but it is a bad thing to permit them to witness here the triumphs of Christianity in the ameliorated institutions and manners of a Christian society. But it might be replied that the motives of the associators were not disinterested—that they had no philanthropic intention to benefit the Indians—no religious anxiety to promote their spiritual welfare: and he admitted that self interest, and self-interest alone, prompted them; nor did he think the worse of their objects because it was found that in accomplishing them self-interest and philanthropy were capable of combination. Nothing more strongly recommended a principle than its consistency at once with enlightened self-interest and enlarged benevolence—

For true self love and social are the same.

Perhaps he might be taunted with these selfish and sordid motives if he ventured to claim for the Asiatic Indian the right of emigration here. What is the case?—In Europe the population is pressing on the means of subsistence: in Asiatic India, the population is also pressing on the means of subsistence. To both emigration has become necessary. There is the unreclaimed continent of Australia at the antipodes of the one, and in the vicinity of the other but a handful of Europeans occupying a section of this continent,—advocate the continuance of a restriction which prohibits the Asiatic Indian from that very relief of which they have availed themselves. For himself, he confidently anticipated that the resources of this continent would be developed, and its great destinies achieved, by the Asiatic hand and European head—by the labour of the former, combined with the skill and capital of the latter. There was another class of opponents, whose objections were less moral than political:—accustomed to view the relation of the black man and the white man as that of master and slave, they connected and associated all the mischiefs and evils of slavery with the introduction of a coloured race of labourers here. These objections had been urged in the highest quarter; and the consequences of slavery in America had been pointed at in warning to them. But was there any resemblance—was there any analogy between a colony exempt from the institutions and free from the associations of slavery, and America, where the monstrous anomaly exists of a black population in bondage, and a white democracy pushing liberty to licentiousness?—In truth there was no precedent of a coloured race emigrating to a colony untainted by slavery, and therefore to predict that that such mischiefs and evils must necessarily ensue, is to assume, that which is as unwarranted by experience, as it is unsupported by probability. But it might be said, they were begging the whole question, by assuming that Indian labour was cheaply attainable, or that when obtained, it would be available to the colonists. To this it might be replied, the test of experience can alone determine its cheapness and value. We now seek to make the experiment; but there is at present a restriction we seek to remove, which prevents a trial. Conceding therefore the superior claim of British emigrants, avowing the completest and warmest preference for them, and lamenting the impossibility of obtaining them; the members of this Association conceived that under circumstances of proved necessity, when, in addition to the complicated calamities with which the colony was then visited, a dearth of labour was threatened, they were justified in seeking the removal of a restriction which prohibited the importation of labour from India.

The second resolution was then put and unanimously carried.

JAMES BYRNE RICHARDS, Esq., moved the adoption of the third resolution:

That the Chairman be requested to give the thanks of the Meeting to the Committee of the Sydney Association, for their prompt attention in communicating with the Members of the Bathurst Association.

The resolution was seconded by WILLIAM LEE, Esq., and unanimously carried.

General Stewart having vacated the chair, which was taken by George Rankin, Esq., and thanks having been voted to the General, the meeting dispersed.

ORIGINAL CORRESPONDENCE.

OH SAVE MY CITY!

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—As there are so many candidates in the field for the most important offices in the disposal of the Corporation, and as an injudicious choice might lead to the most frightful mischances and waste of the public money, I beg to suggest, that the candidates should be put on a trial, surveying and vertical section. For instance;—from low water at Dawes' Point, along George-street, into low water at old Queen's Wharf; continuing George-street to King-street, thence into low water at Commercial Wharf and Wooloomooloo Bay, returning to George-street, into low water at Bathurst-street, Grose's Wharf; and finally returning to George-street, into low water at Ultimo. The field books to be kept in ink, and with a rough plan and section delivered to a Committee of the Council, having power to refer the same to scientific men, and on report, that the first and second best plans and sections should be paid for, and such plans to be the property of the Corporation.

By this process the list of candidates would be much reduced, and the Corporation would be furnished with the great arterial system of city sewerage, and estimates of the gigantic operations; in five, of the six wards, which will be required at some future day, and the office of City Surveyor would then be held by a person of proved ability and character, entitled to public confidence.

I feel assured, that many of the candidates are ignorant of the arduous and responsible duties which they so rashly would undertake, but could never accomplish; and that after this explanation they ought to retire. I should not shrink from this ordeal myself; indeed, if it be not done, I shall take an early opportunity of presenting, gratis, such a work, as my share of the common duty, which each citizen owes, to aid the infant liberties of the city.

A CARD.

MRS. WATKINS, of Durham Cottage, Fort-street, begs to intimate that she has several vacancies, and will be happy to receive four gentlemen as permanent boarders. To families and gentlemen making a short stay in Sydney, her house will be found a desirable residence. To those requiring a private home her advertisement is particularly addressed. References of the highest respectability. 6754

To the Inhabitants of this, and the surrounding Colonies.

ON the introduction of a New Order into this Colony, it will naturally be expected that some explanation of the motives that have induced us to take such a step will be given, and also what objects we have in view, and the means by which we intend to accomplish our ends.

Our objects are, to improve the morals of our brethren, to promote brotherly love, to relieve the distressed, to administer to the wants and necessities of the afflicted, and smooth the dying pillow of our brethren, and afford protection to their widows and fatherless children; and therefore the members of this order do bind themselves under a solemn obligation, firmly to unite, sincerely to love, and inflexibly to stand by each other in sickness and in health, in prosperous and in adverse circumstances; and, in order that we may have the means of carrying these benevolent objects into effect, we have introduced the INDEPENDENT ORDER OF RECHABITES into this colony.

That Secret Orders have been productive of much good, no one can deny; but it must be admitted by those who are acquainted with them, that, as at present constituted, they are unfavourable to the promotion of Temperance, which it is our object to spread in every possible way.

THE INDEPENDANT ORDER OF RECHABITES will be found not only to possess superior advantages to other Orders, but is free from their imperfections and defects; this Order is also superior to Benefit Societies, which only relieve those who are in immediate connection with them; but if a Rechabite come from any part of the world, and be in distress, he has an equal claim to our assistance and protection, as if he resided in the same town, and were a member of the same tent.

Every information respecting the Order, and the formation of new tents, may be known on application to Mr. Vercoe, at the Temperance Coffee House, Pitt street,—(if by letter, post paid.)

WILLIAM HENRY WELLS, Esq., Candidate for the Office of City Surveyor.

AMONG the many meteoric flashes of talent with which this bright genius occasionally electrifies the people, and illumes the scientific horizon of New South Wales, his Map of the City is the latest. Of this Map, which I redeemed from the hands of the Engraver, I gave him gratis thirty six copies, to present to the Mayor, Aldermen, and Councillors, a copy each, to aid his views as a candidate; and the first return I meet with, as indeed on reflection I ought to have expected, is the publication of a piratical copy by Baker, in its unfinished state, before I could with safety publish the plan, which by the kindness of several surveyors, is now undergoing the necessary rectifications of errors to fit it for publication. Some men pursue their fortunes in the direct paths of honour, honesty, and industry; and some seek that object through the devious ways and labyrinths of a crooked policy. I wish Mr. Wells joy in his election, and Mr. Baker much profit from his piracy.

R. CLINT, Engraver, Hunter street.

GENTLEMEN,—The period of my agreement with John Eales, Esq., having terminated, I hereby undertake to shepherd any flock from one thousand to five thousand. I am, Gentlemen,
Yours, respectfully,
TIMOTHY SHEA.

NOTICE OF EVENING SALE

THE Land on the Parramatta Road and Gipps Town, part of the Five Dock Estate, for sale by MR. STUBBS, is postponed (in consequence of the elections) to THIS EVENING, the 14th November, 1842, at the Mart, King-street, when it will positively take place, without reserve; sale to commence precisely at seven o'clock.

Terms, ten per cent. deposit, with liberal credit for the residue, and twenty per cent. discount allowed for cash.

⁎ A variety of other properties will be arranged and submitted successively, that evening, for public competition.

Mr. Stubbs is instructed to bring the above valuable suburban property to public competition (as per plan, to be inspected at the Mart). The size of the lots vary from fifty feet frontages, by suitable depths, leaving every purchaser free as to the extent he might wish to go.

The land on the main road is cleared, stumped, and fenced, fit for immediate occupation, and improving the property by a delightful opening view of the bay.

It is not more than half an hour's drive or pull to business, and preferred as a healthy walk into town.

The mail and stage coaches regularly pass the property; there are, besides, the established stages of Gipps' Town, well known for dispatch and punctuality. As to

LOCALITY,

West is the police station at Longbottom; north, Hen and Chicken Bay and Parramatta River; east, the Great North Road to the ferry for the Hunter and interior; the town itself is so subdivided by well-arranged streets of intercourse, that every desirable accommodation is most providently taken care of.

The value of land at Gipps' Town has been, from its improved character, notoriously a source of great profit to every one that has been wise enough to buy it.

So that there can be no mistake about Gipps' Town; and this sale is prompt and determined—whatever it may fetch 6807

About One Acre and a Half of Land with Cottage.

IN HEN AND CHICKEN BAY.

MR. STUBBS will put up at public auction, at the Mart, King-street, on MONDAY, the 21st day of November, 1842, at twelve o clock,

AS PER DESCRIPTION AND INSTRUCTIONS RECEIVED FROM THE PROPRIETOR.

This delightful Suburban Marine Retreat maintains a choice and admired portion of the central curve of this much spoken of and desirable side of the broad waters of the Parramatta River. It is decidedly preferable as a locality, the ground being described as all cleared and fenced in; and rising gently from the margin of the Bay, displays the most agreeable eminence as a site for a residence of larger extent than the one at present there, which is but a quiet unpretending Cottage of wood, but nevertheless plastered inside and out. It forms, however, a most interesting object of tranquility, and rural enjoyment seen by the steamers as they are continually flitting past the mouth of the Bay, oftentimes attracting the notice of passengers. It is about six miles from town, and a short distance from the Parramatta Road.

The scope of property embraces a frontage of about ninety-four feet to the Bay by four hundred feet depth, more or less, to James street, and is only divided by the garden fence from Mr. Joseph Simmons' residence.

Terms a low figure - Deposit, twenty per cent. and three years' credit, or twenty per cent. deposit, and three, six, nine, and twelve months bills, bearing ten per cent. interest. 6769

GREAT PROFIT ON SMALL PURCHASE!

ON THE

CITY BOUNDARY LINE SOUTH.

To the Trades and Mechanics of Sydney.

MR. STUBBS has the pleasure of announcing instructions received from the proprietor of this Estate, to bring it to public competition, on MONDAY, the 21st day of November, 1842, at the Mart, King-street, sale to commence at Twelve o'clock precisely,

All that very superior and choice selection of Building Ground, opposite the REDFERN estate, and alongside the

MARKET-GARDEN GROUNDS

Of W. Hutchinson, Esq., bounded by the Government street and Botany road,

SUBDIVIDED

Into (LIV.) fifty-four most admirably arranged Lots, of twenty-five feet frontage each, by depths from fifty to eighty feet, more or less.

FOR ALL CLASSES OF BUYERS.

Thirteen allotments have frontages to Botany Road, eleven to the Government street, and the residue to Woodburn, Hart, and Yarnold streets. The corner one particularly to be noticed. The situation is not rugged, precipitous, or sand-choked, like many, but rises gradually from the productive and flourishing gardening grounds, at the foot, to a pleasant site of elevation, and stopping there, throws all that valuable character into the quality of building ground, which comes so handy to the workman who improves, and acceptable to the pockets of the wise man who possesses, it.

If the times be now not so much for the enchantment of the picturesque and sublime, or sensual delight, as for some solid reason or purpose, where a man can lay out his money more profitably than anywhere else, and in right course expect to have what he ought, namely, a good return for his purchase-money, this is the very thing for him—all cut and dried to his hands, without delay in abstracts, &c., or trouble on entering.

If a man cannot run up a twelve-shillings a week house, where there is no Building Act, or assessment of any kind, to bother him, for £60, and does not let them as fast as ever he can build them, he must either have a very "queer" collector, or be himself the "juste-milieu" of all suburban landlords.

What is £60 in credit—in the scale of making a man independent? are our neighbours outside Philip Ward less alive to the consequences of steady perseverance in Tradesmen and Mechanics than those within? See the City Poll-books, and judge ye then whether Land is not only a possession of freehold, fixed and immoveable, but also of character, condition, and power! The just reward of industry which any man may obtain by buying one or more of these CHIPPENDALE ALLOTMENTS—That is a fact! with all the comments in the world. 6768

HALF-MOON BAY,

PARRAMATTA RIVER.

MR. BLACKMAN will sell by auction, at his Rooms, George-street, adjoining the Bank of New South Wales, on WEDNESDAY, the 23rd instant, at twelve o'clock, (by order of the proprietor),

Two of the very best sections of Land, at South Town, immediately adjoining the public wharf, and opposite the Garry-owen Estate, to and in which the late proprietor, J. R. Brenan, Esq., has pledged himself to provide and run a punt for the accommodation of the inhabitants, by which route the distance from Sydney scarcely exceeds three miles, or by taking the Balmain road the distance is still less.

The numerous efforts of auctioneers, and others, to describe the beauties of scenery, and advantages of situation, of this land, have been short of its real merits, which can only be justly appreciated by being visited.

Section 27 is adjoining the public wharf, and bounded on the south by the waters of Half Moon Bay, on the east by Thompson-street, on the west by Barney-street, on the north by Market street. Section 28 is divided from the above only by Market-street, and bounded on three other sides by Thompson, Barney, and Therry Streets.

There cannot now remain a doubt as to the increased, and still increasing, value of land in this township, as it is well known that the proprietary of Bourke Town are numerous, and highly influential from their respectability and wealth. Situate as this most delightful property is, on the sloping banks of Half Moon Bay, commanding on all sides most magnificent views of the surrounding country—the Parramatta River, and the harbour of Port Jackson; in fact, if you search the neighbourhood of Sydney, a more delightful and convenient spot cannot be found. While the citizens of Sydney may build their Villa Residences, and be relieved from the annoyance and expense of keeping their own carriage, by taking the advantage of the steam-boats, which pass to and from Sydney several times a day, being an elegant, easy, economical, and certain mode of conveyance.

Terms at sale. 6682

MR. BLACKMAN begs to call the attention of the public to the sale of landed property, in the above estate, which has been fixed to take place on THURSDAY, 8th December, at twelve o'clock, at his Rooms, George Street, Sydney by order of the Trustee,

Lot 1st.—Are the premises known as the Governor Gipps's Arms recently erected at a cost of upwards of £5000, with every consideration for luxury of taste, and with special reference to the neighbourhood of the Homebush Race Course, to which they are very conveniently attached.

These valuable premises, which from their contiguity to the City must be familiar to almost every one are in some respects superior, would in all others bear a comparison with any establishments of the kind in the colony. They are situated on about ten acres of Land, and would together form a most favourable opportunity for the investment of capital.

Lot 2nd.—Contains 3 acres, 1 rood, 20 perches, at Five Dock Farm, three consists of 113 feet frontage to the High-street, Maitland, on which is erected a cottage in the occupation of Burne Russell, and let for the weekly rental of twenty five shillings. 6606

Cattle and Station to be sold on the Richmond River.

MR. BLACKMAN has received instructions from the Proprietors, Messrs. Clay and Stapleton, in consequence of dissolution in partnership, to sell by public auction, at his Rooms, George-street, on THURSDAY, the 15th of December next, at twelve o'clock precisely,

There are also four stock horses of a superior description, working-bullocks, pigs and poultry; numerous dairy, farming, and carpenters' implements, and also about three thousand feet of cedar cut in boards.

With the above will be sold the right of a first-rate station on the Richmond River, within about fifty miles of Moreton Bay, on which is erected a good substantial verandah cottage, containing five large rooms and store, with two acres of land fenced in and prepared for a garden, twenty-five for a cultivation paddock, and a very extensive grazing paddock, with three men's huts, large stock yards and milking yard. Bales and calf-pens slabbed and covered in.

Parties wishing to treat for the above, can do so by applying to the auctioneer at any time prior to the day of sale.

Terms will be made known at time of sale. 6435

In the Insolvent Estate of George Rust and Co.

BY ORDER OF THE TRUSTEES.

MR. STUBBS will sell by Public Auction, THIS DAY, the 14th day of November next, at the Mart, King-street, sale at twelve o'clock.

WITHOUT RESERVE, AS PLAN AT MART.

All the remaining Lots of those Thirty Allotments of the Balmain Estate, Waterview Bay and which were put up by Public Auction by Mr. Stubbs on 9th June, 1841.

P. S. It must be quite in the recollection of every one at all conversant in the value of Suburban Property, that the Waterview Bay situation has commanded most extraordinary prices, and these few lots are to be sold without any reference to limit, and on easy terms. It is presumed every monied person and builder will attend the sale in good time.

N.B. The frontages are 66 feet by 135 to 155 feet depths, varying more or less.

Terms liberal, at sale. 6416

SIX BUILDING ALLOTMENTS

On the Parramatta Road, alongside the well-known.

NEARLY OPPOSITE THE

NEW TOLL HOUSE,

AND CORNER POINT OF THE KINGSTON ROAD.

MR. STUBBS will put up by public competition THIS DAY, the 14th day of November, 1842, at the Mart, King-street, sale at twelve o'clock.

LOTS 4, 5, 6,

Have frontages to the Parramatta Road of twenty feet each by sixty in depth, more or less. Lot 6 being also in the Kingston Road, a corner lot, and admirably suited for a baker, butcher, general dealer, or provision stand.

LOTS 1, 2, 3,

Front the Kingston Road, same proportions, all the lots widen at the opposite end.

When a moderate buyer has little to pay for in a bargain, and much to get by it, it is all he looks for, one would suppose, and considering this property is only about a mile from the city, and of frontages so moderately sized for profitable purchase, that it cannot be better designed for any man of small means, who can set up a little shop and not interfere with his daily avocations at all.

If this property had only been double the size it never would have been sold at all, in consequence of its convenience to Sydney, immense thoroughfare, and advantages for building purposes, and invaluable convenience, also to water by the reserved road to the Creek.

Good terms and low prices.

P. S. If the whole is sold, no charge will be made for conveyance. 6602

On the Side Line of Mr. William Robertson's Land.
